

The geographer's tasks included the creation of field maps. These required the use and knowledge of pigments and the addition of color to enhance the maps, which may have immediate use for a military unit.